THINGS TO CONSIDER

- Choose the correct appliance, taking form and functionality into consideration.
- User's physical requirements (height, weight, balance, control, etc). Some users may not be suited to certain products based on their physical limitations.
- Make certain a cleaning program is in place for hygiene control, especially for the bedside commodes.
- Is the product for hire, domestic or institutional use? Consider room decor preferences.
- The base of some equipment may not fit under a bed or chair, eg. Patient lift pole or the overbed tables.
- Do not place excessive weight on the table top of an over bed table, it may cause the table to become unstable.
- Storage or transportation requirements. Some products can be folded away and easily stored.
- Accessories and Warranty.
